Classics (with free EPUB downloads)

Google Books is where you will find all of the titles that Google has been busy digitizing for the past few years. There are millions of titles available. If the titles are in the public domain they are available in full preview and available for download. If the books are still copyright protected then there may be a partial preview. This site includes poetry, literature, textbooks, and magazines and if you create an iGoogle account you can start your own personal library.
